Jack would be a Gentleman if he could but ſpeak French, Jannot ſeroit Gentilhomme s'il ſavoit parler François. Ce dire paſſa en Proverbe du tems de Guillaume le Conquerant, qui de Duc de Normandie s'étant fait Roy d'Angleterre par la force de ſes Armes y voulut introduire non ſeulement les Coûtumes, mais la Langue mêmes des Normands. Si bien que le François étant tout à fait de requête en ce tems là dans le Roiaume d'Angleterre, cela fit naitre ce Proverbe, qui fait beaucoup d'honneur à nôtre Langue. On s'en ſert mêmes aujourd'hui, veu que la plûpart de la Nobleſſe Angloiſe s'applique à cette Langue avec autant d'attachement & d'emulation qu'on le puiſſe par ces trois motifs, la Curioſité, l'Interet, ou l'Ambition. De là vient que le Peuple mêmes, qui n'a pas beaucoup d'affection pour les François, en a de reſte pour leur Langue.

A Jack-pudding, un fou, un boufon de Theatre.

More know Jack-pudding than Jack-pudding knows, plus de gens connoiſſent un fou qu'un fou ne connoit de gens. Ce Proverbe fut heureuſement appliqué à un homme vain, qui paſſant les Rues de Londres dans un Caroſſe remarqua que pluſieurs perſonnes le ſaluoient que lui ne connoiſſoit pas. Il fut ravi cependant dans la penſée qu'il avoit d'être connu de tant de monde. Il temoigna mêmes d'en être ſurpris à quelcun de la Compagnie, qui lui répondit ſechement, Ne ſavez vous pas le Proverbe, More know Jack-pudding than Jack-pudding knows?
